

Department of Natural Resource Management (NRM)

The Department of Natural Resource Management (NRM) in Forestry faculty came into existence from June 2010, after recruitment and deployment of staff as per the recommendations of ICFRE and ICAR. The department is an amalgamation of experts in Soil and Water Conservation Engineering, Soil Science, Agronomy, Forestry, Agro Meteorology, Economics, Environmental Science and Eco-tourism. Employability potential of these specialists is high in rural, agriculture, forestry, social welfare, horticulture departments and in Block / District level development programmes in government and non government organizations, national and international watershed projects involving forestry and environment protection.

Objectives

The main aim of the department is to impart education to the students admitted in Horticulture and Forestry, with following specific objectives:

- To impart education regarding basics of natural resources to the students
- To make the students aware about activities of watershed management
- To initiate the students with the use of Remote Sensing and GIS
- To educate the students regarding Environmental Conservation and impending threats of Climate Change
