

Future Plan

The department aim is to impart quality education to under graduate and post graduate students, encourage post graduate students to undertake research projects in the fields of Molecular Biology and Reproductive Biotechnology, identification of genetic disorders in various Livestock species. Animal Biotechnology encompasses a broad range of techniques for the genetic improvement of domesticated animals as well as ameliorate animal health problem for the benefit of the region specific community and extension of the same to the grass root level.